Editorial

GREETINGS to each member of the Alumnæ Association and a special greeting to each member of the Classes of 1921 and 1922. These two classes are planning to meet at the Seminary in May, 1923 for a fine re-union.

The continuation of the Scholarships and the correcting of the Class Lists seem to be the first work at hand. Let each one of us be willing to help and do whatever work should be asked of us in helping with these lists.

If possible get a new member for the Association and send in any bit of news you know.

Let us all prove our loyalty to our Alma Mater by our loyalty to the Alumnæ Association.

Dedicated to the Mary Baldwin Seminary Alumnae Association.

Across the Years

Across the years, I hear your laughter sweet,
I see your faces through a mist of tears,
Oh, comrades of the happy, school-girl years!
I hear the echo of your tripping feet,
As on the terrace there we used to meet
In the soft dusk! In happy laughing pairs,
We walked and talked and dreamed—and knew no cares,
Upon the terrace there above the street!

Ah, yes! we wandered there and talked and dreamed,
A radiant wonder then the future seemed!
We planned what we should do when school was done,
And turned to life, as flowers to the sun!
How slow time seemed to our impatient feet
That trod the terrace there above the street!

Oh, comrades in the dusk of memory,
Where are you now? has life been good to you
Or Death? Have all your girlish dreams come true?
Oh, gay young faces that come back to me,
What lines are written there, if one could see?
And is the laughter hushed that once I knew?
Ah, do you see it there in memory, too,
The terrace where we walked so happily?

And these gay feet that walked it once, dream-shod,
What paths of care and trouble have they trod?
How bruised upon the stones of life's rough ways,
Oh, dear companions of the golden days?
Across the years, I send a song to greet
You on the terrace there above the street!

Annual Business Meeting

The annual business meeting of the Mary Baldwin Seminary Alumnae Association was held Friday, May 26, 1922, in the Girls' Parlor of the Seminary.

The President and First Vice-President were both absent; the Second Vice-President, Mrs. Annie Hotchkiss-Howison presided. The meeting was called to order and opened by a prayer by Mrs. Howison.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Recording Secretary, Mrs. Janet Stephenson-Roller, and accepted.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPORT

To the Mary Baldwin Seminary, the President sends warmest greetings and many regrets that she is unable to be present at this Commencement.. As under Miss Higgins splendid management the work of the Seminary has gone on with unlimited progress and we are indeed proud of the progress that has been made in the past year, so as your President I would like to report such progress in the work of the Alumnae Association, but on account of conditions in my family, my work has not been carried on as I wanted it. I deeply regret that I have not been able to accomplish what I set out to do.

The Alumnae lists remain in very bad order. They must be corrected before much work among the old girls can be done. After careful going over the class lists I found them too incomplete for Class Chairman to use. So I sent out the lists of girls by States, to a person in practically every State. That work is not complete, it will take much time. If the Association could secure the services of a good secretary for a few months the lists could be corrected. I beg that you consider this matter.

I sent out the Missionary Scholarship Circulars, and I hope they brought in good returns.

An effort was made to organize two new chapters but it was found impossible.

With many good wishes for the success of the Association and with the hope that in some way I may serve the Alumnae of the Mary Baldwin Seminary better than I have during this year.

Cordially,
ANNIE COBB-TOMS, President.

The Vice-President reported a meeting of the executive committee held in preparation for the business meeting. The report of the Auditing Committee, stating that the books of the Association Treasurer and the Treasurer of the Missionary Scholarship Committee were found correct, was heard. Both reports were accepted.

Following is the Treasurer's report which was accepted:

The report of the Alumnae Scholarship Committee was in the form of a letter written by Pauline Harris, the Alumnae Scholarship pupil, and read by Miss Nannie Tate.

Mint Spring, Va., May 18, 1922.

Miss Fannie Struass, Treas.,
Mary Baldwin Alumnae Association,
Staunton, Virginia.

Dear Miss Strauss:

I take this opportunity to express to you and to the Alumnae Association, of which you are the Treasurer, my sincere thanks and appreciation for the great kindness you have rendered me and for the honor you have bestowed upon me in awarding me the Scholarship this year. Words fail to express my many, many thanks to you for this scholarship and I hope and trust that I have proven myself worthy of it and that I have succeeded in meeting your expectations. Perhaps I have not done by work as properly as I should and have not made satisfactory grades, however if I am permitted the scholarship for another year I shall improve to the best of my ability.

Thanking you again for the scholarship and for your kindness, I remain,

Most sincerely,
PAULINE HARRIS.

Miss Harris' work was highly praised by her teachers and she was reappointed as the scholarship pupil for next session.

Mr. Harris, Pauline Harris' father, sent a message of greeting to the Alumnae Association and a note of thanks through Mr. King, for the scholarship which had been awarded to his daughter.

Miss Sallie Hamilton-McCormick occupied the chair while Mrs. Howison read the report of the Missionary Scholarship Committee. This report was accepted by a rising vote of thanks.

MISSIONARY SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE MISSIONARY SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE

Mary Baldwin Alumnae Association

Fellow Alumnae:

It is with pardonable pride that we present to you the second annual report of the M. B. S. A. A. Missionary Scholarship Committee, which report is made possible by the splendid response of the alumnae to our third call for funds for the maintenance and endowment of this scholarship, thus evidencing a continued and abiding interest in this special work of the Alumnae Association, so that its present up-keep and future endowment now appears to be assured.

Your Committee has held three meetings during the year, and kept in close touch with the beneficiary of the Scholarship, through Miss Higgins, her various instructors, and the Faculty member of the Committee, Nannie McFarland. At our September, 1921, meeting, Elizabeth Bell, our capable first Chairman-treasurer, resigned her joint office, owing to the fact that she had accepted the position of Dean at Belhaven College, Jackson, Miss. We accepted this resignation with regret, knowing that our loss was their gain. Anne Hotchkiss-Howison was made Chairman, and Kate Nelson-Stout, Treasurer, and Nannie W. McFarland was added to the Committee. The retiring Chairman-Treasurer was authorized to invest certain surplus funds in a $500 Liberty Bond, the beginnings of our endowment.

At the second meeting of the Committee, in March 1922, we reappointed Virginia Alby Bull as beneficiary of the Scholarship for the session 1922-23, after having consulted with the principal, Miss Higgins, and those members of the faculty, who by reason of Virginia's class work under them, could give us helpful information in making our decision.

The third meeting of the Committee was held on May 23rd to arrange for its annual report and to formulate a recommendation which will be presented to you for adoption at the close of this report.

The Chairman sent out the circular letter and subscription blanks for 1922 to Atlanta, Knoxville, Washington, Birmingham, and New York Chapters, and to 400 alumnae at large. Margaret McChesney, co-chairman of Staunton Chapter and member of the Committee, sent out 80 circulars, etc, in Staunton and Augusta County, and Nannie McFarland sent out 25 to members of the class of 1921.

As the Treasurer's financial report will follow this of the Committee, it is not necessary to touch on finances here, but as inspiration follows information, we wish to give the alumnae a brief outline of the work and school life of our Virginia Alby Bull; through her reports, from the principal and her instructors, we learn of her steady improvement in class work, and, as one of the faculty said to us, "her all around development this year is 100%." As a member of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet and Chairman of its Missionary Committee, the Faculty Advisor of the Y. W. C. A. says, "No member of the Cabinet has felt her responsibility and measured up to the Cabinet work more than Virginia, and I have depended on her all through the year." As Chairman of the Missionary Committee, Virginia had practically entire charge of the Missionary pageant, "The Gift of Self," given by the Y. W. C. A., which was a marked success, testifying to her ability as a leader in a special line of work. Virginia has been appointed Business Manager of the M. B. S. magazine, "The Miscellany," for 1922 and 1923, and this summer will be with Mary Huston Turk, an alumna and literary graduate of the Seminary, as a Councillor at the girls' summer camp, "Merrie Woode," Sapphire, N. C. Virginia is specially gifted in mathematics, and a leader in the school athletics.

This report will close with the following letters to the Chairman of the Committee, from Virginia and from her mother, Libbie Alby Bull.

"M. B. S., Staunton, Va.
May 6, 1922.

"My Dear Mrs. Howison:

I received your letter notifying me that I am to have the honor of holding the Missionary Scholarship again next year, and I want to express my most sincere thanks and appreciation, through you to the Alumnae Association for their generosity.

This has been a very happy year for me and as circumstances appear now, next year will be even a better one, and I thank each member of the Alumnae Association for it and feel that I owe it all to them, and in return, to show my appreciation, I will do all in my power to make the coming year the most successful year that I have ever known.

In closing, I beg to remain always,

Yours most thankfully,

VIRGINIA BULL."

"Kunsan, Korea,
April 11, 1922.

My Dear Mrs. Howison:

Your good letter postmarked March 16th reached me and has been read with much pleasure by Mr. Bull and me. We appreciate more than we can say your kind words about Virginia, and all that has been done for her. This more than generous help given to us has enabled us to stay on the field, as without this help it would have been absolutely impossible for us to face the education of the three children now in the U. S. You know how I feel about the scholastic standard of M. B. S. Separated as I am by the great distance between us, I appreciate too, as never before, the uplifting and refining influences of the school, and the watchful care of each girl, and the rules and regulations by which the character of a girl is molded. We think that Virginia realizes the importance of study, and that under the loving guidance of the teachers at M. B. she has learned how to study.

"We wish to again express through you to the Committee and the M. B. S. Alumnae Association, our sincere gratitude for all that has been done for us in giving this scholarship to Virginia. Words cannot express all that is in my heart. We are lonely without the children, but we can bear the loneliness for Christ's sake. Virginia realizes God's goodness in giving her this chance, and I am praying daily that she may make the most of every opportunity, and that her life may show, in the future as well as in the present, that it has been well worth while.

"With love for all the kind friends who are helping us at this time, and a prayer that God may richly bless you, one and all,

Your friend,

LIBBIE ALBY BULL."

Does not this report of our pupil's life and work in the Mary Baldwin Seminary, and this beautiful expression of appreciation, sacrifice, and trust in God from her mother, make this work indeed worth while?

Respectfully submitted,

MISSIONARY SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE,

(Mrs.) Annie Hotchkiss-Howison, Chairman
(Mrs.) Kate Nelson Stout,
Miss Margaret McChesney,
Miss Elizabeth A. Bell,
Miss Nannie W. McFarland.

(Since this report was read to the Association, Virginia Bull was awarded the prize for Plane Geometry and Trigonometry at M. B. S. finals).

The chairman of the publication committee reported 700 copies of the 1921 Bulletins printed.

Reports were read from the following chapters: New York, Washington, Knoxville, Charleston, (S. C.). These reports were accepted. Especially interesting was the New York Chapter report which told of the luncheon at which Mr. and Mrs. W. W. King were the guests of honor.

A motion was made and carried in regard to the abolishing of memorials. Only in case of the death of a member who had, at some time, been an officer in the Association, are memorials to be written. Instead the names of those members dying during the year are to be read at each business meeting. A memorial to Mrs. Sara Price-Hanger was written and read by Miss Virginia Switzer. A copy of this was sent to Mrs. Hanger's family. The members of the Association present rose and stood while the names of two other members, who had died since last May, were read.

Miss Jennie Somerville, of Mitchells, Va.

Miss Helen Wickenberg, of Charleston, S. C.

Under the head of "Old Business" the question of changing the dues was acted upon. An amendment to Article VI of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Association increased the annual dues from fifty cents to one dollar. The initiation fee shall remain one dollar and life membership ten dollars.

Each of the "old" girls, who was back for Commencement, introduced herself and made a few remarks. Those were:

Mrs. Clara Kennedy-Burney, '77, of Asheville, N. C.
Miss Mary Hoover, '05, of Somerset, Pa.
Miss Mary Black, '12, of Somerset, Pa.
Miss Edith Baush, '12, of Somerset, Pa.
Mrs. Nannie Timberlake-Dillon, '12, of Panama.

The report of the Nominating Committee was accepted.

Mary Baldwin Seminary Alumnae Association:

The nominating committee recommends the followning names for your consideration—

For President—Mrs. Archibald T. Cary, Richmond, Va.

For First Vice-President—Mrs. C. W. Toms, Jr., Durham, N. C.

For Second Vice-President—Mrs. A. M. Howison, Staunton, Va.

For Recording Secretary, Mrs. C. S. Roller, Fort Defiance, Va.

For Cor. Sec'y—Miss Elizabeth Timberlake, Staunton, Va.

For Treasurer—Miss Fannie Strauss, Staunton, Va.

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. KATE NELSON STOUT,
MISS FANNIE STRAUSS,
MRS. C. R. CALDWELL, Chairman.

May 26, 1922.

Miss Annie Van Deventer was asked to take charge of the memorial services to be held at Miss Baldwin's grave Sunday afternoon.

All members and guests were asked to attend the tea at four-thirty that afternoon. An invitation was extended to all to attend the closing exercises of the Seminary, including the pageant, soirees, art exhibition, and graduating exercises.

There being no further business, the meeting was declared adjourned.

The nominee of the Nominating Committee was unable to accept the presidency. After an unsuccessful effort on the part of the executive committee to secure two others, it was thought best that the president of the two past years should again serve.

Alumnæ Tea

From four-thirty to six in the afternoon of Alumnae Day the members of the Association, Faculty, Board of Trustees, visiting Alumnae, Seniors, and Juniors were delightfully entertained at an informal tea. Owing to the inclement weather the tea was held indoors in the Girls' Parlor which was tastefully decorated in white and yellow.

NEWS OF FORMER TEACHERS

Miss Bessie Leftwich is teaching in Salem College, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Miss Orene McIlwaine is conducting Bible classes at Montreat this summer. She expects to sail in August for China to take up her duties as a missionary.

On May 28th, Edward Rex, the second son of Mrs. Maude Sheldon-McElroy, was born.

Miss Edith Latane will resume her duties at the Mary Baldwin Seminary after an absence of one year.

The Martha Riddle Memorial School is situated at Hwai-An-Fu, Kiang-Su, China.

It will be a source of great joy to all "old" Baldwin girls to know that Miss Riddle's name will be perpetuated by this school in China. The school is one in which Lily Woods, class of 1914, is teaching and it was through Miss Higgins' suggestion to Lily, that the school now bears this name.

All schools in China have two names—one in Chinese and one in English. The same name is not necessarily used, as the English name, when translated, means nothing to the Chinese. They always use characters with a given meaning and the transformation of our proper names into their characters seldom has any meaning for them. So the missionaries generally keep the Chinese characters ("Happy-Glory" is the Chinese name of this school) and have besides the English name for the school. The school is always known to the Church in the United States by its English name, and also to all English-speaking and English-learning Chinese. The student body is told to whom the school is a memorial and that its object is to stand for the ideals of the one whose name it bears.

How characteristic of Miss Riddle is the Chinese name of this school—"Happy Glory!" And how proud should be the Chinese children who will be taught to live up to the ideals of such a fine and noble woman as Miss Martha Riddle.

From "The Record" 1902

The 1902 copy of "The Record," the publication of the Mary Baldwin Seminary Alumnae Association of that time, contains several articles which will probably be of interest to present readers of "The Bulletin." When the memorial window to Miss Baldwin was unveiled, the address of Mr. Joseph A. Waddell, who presented the window on behalf of the Alumnae Association and that of Dr. A. M. Fraser, who accepted it on behalf of the Seminary, contain bits of history about Miss Baldwin and the Seminary which are here reprinted.

From the address of Mr. Waddell:

I was acquainted with Miss Baldwin almost from her birth till the day of her death, and during the latter half of her life had the honor of being her confidential friend. She was the only child of her parents. Her father died when she was an infant, and her mother during her early childhood, and she was therefore reared by her maternal grandparents.

During infancy she suffered a paralytic stroke which surgical skill failed to relieve, and which ever afterwards greatly marred her natural beauty. On this account mainly, her early years were spent in comparative retirement. She did not mingle much in general society, and especially appeared to avoid the attention of young men. I remember well, on one occasion, when we were both young, of her declining, to my chagrin, some courtesy I tendered her, and which rather caused me to keep aloof from her for years to come.

She, however, devoted herself to study, and as she advanced in years to works of piety and benevolence.

Many persons, as sensitive as she was, would have cherished a misanthropic spirit; but one of the most admirable things that can be said of her, is the courage she displayed in doing her duty both in public and in private. She felt that she had some work to do in this world, and she did it at whatever cost of feeling to herself. She was not, however, unconscious or forgetful of her misfortune, although she appeared so here among familiar acquaintances. While traveling abroad she shrank from observation; and on one or more occasions she remarked to me it was painful to her to see strangers looking at her. Yet she bravely went forward to do what she could, and what she accomplished all here can see and testify to.

For the information of those of you who never saw Miss Baldwin, I may add that only one side of her face was marred. The other side was comely, if not decidedly pretty; her figure was tall and well proportioned; and her hands were the most beautiful that were ever attached to a mortal frame.

Until comparatively a few years past, there were no public free schools in this community; and soon after she attained womanhood, her heart was touched with pity for the many poor children who had little or no opportunity for obtaining even a rudimentary education. She therefore, opened a charity school, and with the assistance of several young friends, whom she enlisted in the scheme, conducted it successfully for some time. She was the soul of the enterprise—without her it would not have continued a month; but there are now men of mature age and of good business capacity, who are indebted to her for all their early educational advantages.

She was a born teacher. I often observed her in the Sunday School, and admired her enthusiasm and skill in the conduct of her class. Young girls would enter her class when small children and cling to her till they become grown women. I could not hear her instructions, and was left to wonder by what means she facinated her pupils and attached them to her. Moreover, she had told me that, having no sufficient means for support without self-help, her purpose was, if she survived her grandmother, with whom she lived without the payment of board, to devote herself to teaching. Her grandmother died early in the war of 1861, and then she opened and taught for awhile a school for girls in a rented house.

With this knowledge and appreciation of Miss Baldwin, when a principal of this seminary was about to resign the position, I suggested to her and the late Miss Agnes McClung, a kindred spirit, that they should jointly take charge of the buildings and school. They both ridiculed the idea, pronouncing it absurd. Miss Baldwin declared that she had not the scholarship fitting her for such a position. To this objection I replied that she could employ competent assistants. I ventured to predict that they would have twenty boarders, as many as the buildings would accommodate, and with a number of day pupils, be able to earn a comfortable support and lead a happy and useful life. They became familiarized with the plan, and at last assented to it. Thereupon, the trustees elected Misses McClung and Baldwin joint principals of the school. That was in the summer of 1863.

An advertisement was put out, announcing that the school open the first of October. But then a serious trouble arose, which had been anticipated, however. The buildings were unifurnished, an neither of the principals had the means of supplying the necessary equipments. If they had possessed ample wealth, new furniture could not be purchased—there was none here for sale, and the war then raging, prevented them from obtaining any from abroad. In this emergency, many friends came to the rescue, and by lending articles of furniture, enabled the two ladies to set up housekeeping in an humble way. No man could have made a beginning under such circumstances, but every lady desired to help two women so well known and so highly esteemed.

From the start the success of the school was much greater than the most sanguine friends anticipated. What the seminary is now I need not describe.

I have often enquired of myself what was the secret of Miss Baldwin's success. Many other women as learned, apparently as intellectual, and possibly as good as she, have attempted to play the same roll—some of them probably induced by her example—and have utterly failed. They lacked the indescribable something that enabled her to achieve success.

But, in the first place, Miss Baldwin was blessed in her early associate. Miss Agnes McClung did not pretend to be highly educated—she did not attempt to teach. As head of the family, her hands were too full for other employment. She had, however, spent her life so far in administering to the wants and comforts of other people, thinking little of her own. She was the personification of pure benevolence. She nursed the ailing and administered to the home sick girls with motherly affection, and they nestled around her in her chamber. Her native good sense made her an invaluable adviser to Miss Baldwin, who declared after her death that she had never failed to follow her advice without cause of regret. Miss Baldwin survived her about twenty years, and long after her decease asserted that her death was the greatest calamity she had ever sustained. With all her kindness Miss Agnes was a rigid disciplinarian, she required obedience to the just and necessary rules of the school, and discountenanced all deception. By precept and example she inculcated perfect truthfulness.

In the next place, Miss Baldwin thoroughly understood the measure of her own capacity—what she could do and what she could not do. To the extent of her ability she trusted herself and labored with courage and untiring energy. Beyond that she called in the assistance of other persons. From the beginning of her enterprise she had the assistance of teachers in the various departments of education who were on an equal footing in respect to qualification with university graduates; and all her assistants, with few exceptions, were accomplished specialists.

Further, Miss Baldwin was self-sacrificing in her effort to promote the welfare of her pupils. She sought not to be ministered unto, but her constant effort was to minister. Yet her sensibilities were very acute. On one occasion I found her deeply afflicted. She had encountered some rude treatment, or some rturn of ingratitude for many favors, or some misconduct of pupils had grievously afflicted her. I do not remember the particular cause of the trouble. The tears rolled down her face, and she said, "People think me very strong and stern, but they little know how I suffer." Touched with sympathy for her, I advised her to resign and retire, urging that she was not called upon to endure such suffering. But she said not, her retirement would probably result in the loss of employment by many persons, to say nothing of the sacrifice to others, and she must persevere at whatever pain to herself. She went forth from the room as calm and intrepid as a general on a battlefield and no one suspected that she was suffering any mental anguish. To feel obliged to notify a teacher that she must dispense with her assistance, always caused her keen sorrow and many wakeful nights.

No mother ever watched over her daughters with more solicitude than she over her pupils. She put herself in the place of the parents, and if a girl misbehaved, as some girls will sometimes, the father and mother suffered no more sorrow than she did.

There is another secret of Miss Baldwin's success of a tender and sacred character. I have spoken of the assistance she sought and received from fellow creatures. She mainly relied on divine guidance and help. Of course, I never heard her lead in prayer, but several ladies who were intimately associated with her have told me that she had what is called "the gift of prayer" to a marvelous degree, surpassing any one they had ever heard. From Her Heavenly Father she no doubt obtained strength, wisdom, guidance and all she needed in her arduous work.

She now rests from her labor, but she is not dead in this seminary and in this community. Before her departure hence, the trustees performed a graceful act in changing, by legislative authority, the name of the seminary which she had built up from a low estate to its present proportions, and calling it for her.

This whole place is thus her monument. None of the great people of the world better deserve a monument than

she. But it is fit that there should be in this hall a special memorial of her, and, in behalf of the alumnae, I have the pleasure of presenting to the seminary the window which will now be unveiled.

From the address of Dr. Fraser:

One behalf of the Mary Baldwin Seminary, its trustees, its officers, its teachers, its pupils, its employees, every one of whom has a proprietary interest in the memory of Miss Baldwin, I accept this window which has been placed here as a memorial of the honored woman for whom the school is named. On behalf of the city of Staunton which feels a material pride in her most distinguished daughter, I accept this tribute from the alumnae, a noble band of matrons and young women, scattered abroad throughout the United States and foreign lands, makers of homes, of communities, of churches and missionaries of the cross on the frontiers of civilization, who themselves have been moulded by the gentle but powerful influence of this great, modest spirit.

We receive the window as a monument that will not allow to perish the memory of our benefactor and friend. When the Israelites passed dry shod over the river Jordan, they erected on the other side a monumental pile of the stones they had gathered in the dry bed of the river that in the years to come when their children should ask, "what mean ye by these stones?" they might answer, "This Jordan was cut off before the ark of the Coveant of the Lord." As successive classes of young ladies come into this institution and ask, "Why is it called the Mary Baldwin Seminary?" they will be told it was named for the woman whose genius made its walls to rise and whose philanthropy gave it a permanent endowment. But when they enter this chapel and see that window, they will know without being told not only that Miss Baldwin was great and good, but also that there was a grace and a charm in her life, because her pupils loved her and they have risen up to "call her blessed."

If you will turn with me for a while and study the details of the design of the window you will see what the excellent poem just read has already led you to anticipate, how fitting the ornamental execution makes it serve the purpose of a memorial.

The pretty device at the top is an emblem in heraldry. It is the coat of arms of the Baldwin family. It was not by accident that Miss Baldwin was a rare woman. She was a descendant of that family, honorable in history and all of its associations, whose unsullied name she bore. Lower in the design we see a spray of flowers on either hand, roses on the left and lilies on the right. These flowers are the emblems respectively of the royal houses of England and France. I am told they are put here to perpetuate the information that Miss Baldwin, like Queen Victoria herself was descended from both Alfred the Great and William the Norman. Lower down still, on the stem of the torch of knowledge and near its base, is the device of a spinning wheel. That is the official seal of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Near ancestors of Miss Baldwin were among the heroes of that struggle for the independence of America. She felt great pride in that fact and took a great interest in the Daughters of the Revolution. For these reasons that official seal has been given a place in the design. Clear perception, a strong grasp of facts, lofty purpose, bold enterprise, daring execution, tireless energy, purity of heart, honesty of mind, unselfish benevolence, exquisite modesty, profound and simple piety, were some of the traits which she gleaned from all the generations of her people who had gone before her on both sides of the house, and bound them in the single sheaf of her own character.

Consider also the torch of knowledge which is so prominent in the foreground. For thirty-four years she held the torch of knowledge in her hand in this institution. The Seminary was her torch of knowledge. How brightly it shone, and how far, and how long its rays will linger and illumine and bless, the alumnae themselves are the best testimonial.

But mere secular learning was no object with Miss Baldwin and it was no concern of her heart. Knowledge transfused with the grace of religion and sanctified by it was the consuming zeal of her life. Long after money ceased to be a consideration with her, long after she discontinued the active work of instruction, long after she was compelled by failing health to relinquish the reins of administration, she held on to the school with a marvelous tenacity, in order that she might gather young girls about her and by the influence of her person and by her prayers might win them for Jesus Christ and for the service of religion. It was, therefore, a happy thought to spread against the stem of that torch of knowledge and make the central object in the whole design, an open Bible, inscribing upon its pages those words from the Latin version "Dominus illuminatio mea," "The Lord is my light." For her, there was no light in any knowledge if it was not according to this light.

Next, inscribed upon a scroll comes the name Mary Julia Baldwin, a name which in this community at least we believe will be immortal.

Following the names are the dates of her birth and death. It is singular fact that while Miss Baldwin's life was a long one, just one-half of it was spent in comparative obsurity and inactivity, and her special gifts were not suspected by herself or any one else. We often hear one say, "I am of no use in the world." Miss Baldwin's life was a complete refutation of that error. At the age of thirty-four she might have said with as much reason as most people who say it: "I am of use in the world." And yet all unknown to her there lay before her and opened to her a career of extraordinary usefulness and renown. Truly "We know not what a day may bring forth," and truly "There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune." At the foot of the window is the modest recital that this window is "Erected by the Alumnae Association." It is that fact which lends its peculiar value to the tribute. It would not be the high enconium that it is if it had been erected by any other hands. While it speaks most eloquently of Miss Baldwin's worth, its peaks no less eloquently though unconsciously of that of the alumnae. It is because the alumnae are what they are that we hold our high opinion of Miss Baldwin who made them what they are. It is because they appreciate her that we know them to be what they are. So in receiving this memorial window at your hands we dedicate it to the double office of commemorating at once the virtues of the great teacher and those of her pupils.

Once more, may I direct your attention to the two substantial columns flanking the design on either hand. May they not serve to suggest the two pillars on which rests the whole fabric of Miss Baldwin's work, her moral character and her intellectual ability.

The Good Book says. "The righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance." It is for God alone to make the remembrance of the righteous "everlasting" we are doing what we can today to make it at least lasting. How long will this window last? Shall it be fifty years, a hundred years, five hundred years, a thousand years? I pledge you that we shall take it into sacred keeping and resolve that it shall outlast everything else in this school except its name. If by the wear and tear of time these walls, which have already stood for nearly a hundred years, should fall and it should become necessary to build another chapel, we will build it to fit that window. If by the progress of invention the houses we now use should become as antiquated as cave dwellings are compared with them, the problem for the future architect will be to build his structure in harmony with this graceful relic. If by further progress of invention houses may be dispensed with an architecture itself become a relict of lost art, the genius which works this transformation in the modes of human living must also devise some way to preserve what is dear to human sentiment and make some casket for this jewel, for what this woman hath done must be told for a memorial of her.
